

New Benefits Advice Service

Following the retirement of Angela Maxwell our current benefits advisor, we have negotiated a replacement service for members through a company called Wordshop. The company will provide this Benefits Information Service direct to you in a similar way to that provided in the past by Angela Maxwell.

Initially access to the Benefits Information Consultant will be by letter, fax or email although in appropriate cases the Consultant may telephone the member following receipt of the initial correspondence. We have included all the relevant required contact details below. Members should include in the correspondence that they are NARPO members.
